

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is a method and apparatus to self update a firmware device. A communication interface receives programming information. A parser coupled to the communication interface to parse the programming information into control commands and program data.